Step into Ennismore Sessions House,
a grand Grade II* listed building that spurs your best creative thinking. For us at Ennismore, it's home, from which our best ideas are born. For you, it's an innovative meetings and events space to amplify any occasion.

A Look BACK

On the west side of Clerkenwell Green stands Ennismore Sessions House, a grand Palladian-style building with the most storied and sometimes dramatic history.

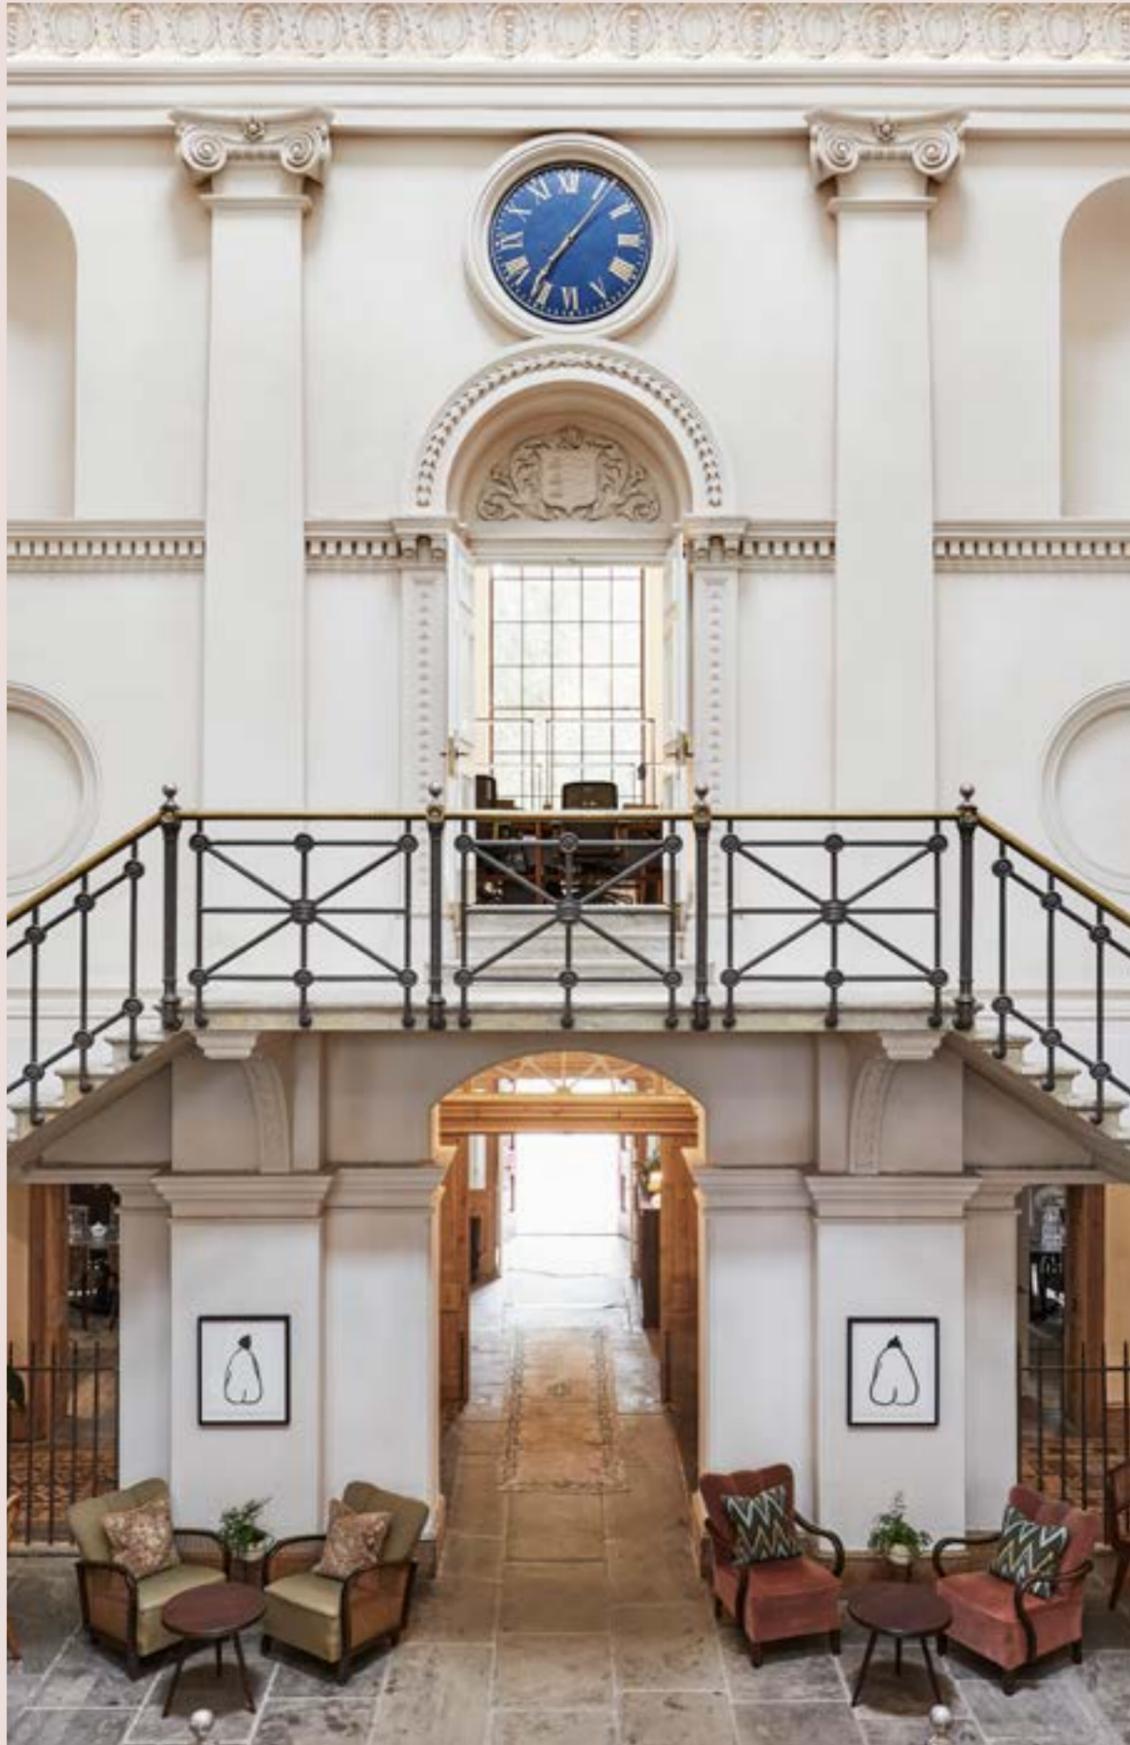

Built in 1779 and opened in 1782, it was originally a public courthouse. Once the largest and busiest in England, its magnificent dome, inspired by the Roman Pantheon, saw thousands of trials take place.

Thieves, murderers and revolutionaries passed through its hallways – sentenced before the magistrate and sent down to the basement cells. It's where Oliver Twist, framed for the acts of the Artful Dodger, was taken for pickpocketing in Dickens's London.

When the courthouse moved in 1931, the building became the headquarters of Avery Scales. In the 1970s, it was acquired as a Masonic Lodge before being sold in 2013. Over its 235-year history, there have only been four proprietors.

Celebrated for its most glorious heritage, it became a Grade II* listed building in 1994 and in 2018, Ennismore moved in.

A look back

Did You KNOW?

Trials, tribulations and tunnels

Rumour has it, there are tunnels underneath Sessions House – some leading to Clerkenwell Prison and some leading to canals that used to take prisoners to Australia!

A notorious meeting place

Clerkenwell Green boasts a radical history. Lenin and his wife lived just across the road from Sessions House in 1902.

Cheap as chips

When the building was put on the market after the war, there was little interest. In 1923, it was sold for £26,500 – well below its valuation of £65,000.

Spot the crook!

Joseph Merceron, the corrupt magistrate and gangster known as the 'Boss of Bethnal Green' who ruled the East End between 1790 and 1840, once held court at Sessions House.

Right Here RIGHT NOW

A new home for Ennismore, because we love beautiful spaces and experiences.

here we are

Gorgeous spaces are our bread and butter and our new headquarters serve as the ultimate exemplar. We're a company dedicated to bringing magic into the everyday.

As our London base, Ennismore Sessions House is where many an inspiring concept is born. Grand as it is, a lot gets done within this space, as we continue to grow and grow.

The Ennismore team working here, oversee our celebrated hotel brands including The Hoxton, Gleneagles and the upcoming NoCo, plus our exciting restaurant and bar ventures including Breddos Tacos, Eggbreak and Tandoor Chophouse, with many more to come.

There's creativity and passion at every corner and on every floor. Come in and explore the space we call home.

Our FRIENDS

In Session with YCN

We're partnering with learning network YCN (You Can Now) to bring a wealth of new ideas, knowledge and ways of working into Ennismore Sessions House — whether that's the books in our specially curated library, or regular workshop and roundtable sessions; tools to fire up your teams or stationary to capture their freshest ideas.

@thisisycn

Pick a card

You'll find a collection of cards in your space; sharing prompts, hacks and other inspiration to spur your thinking and fuel your creativity. From breathing techniques to focus your mind; to tips on making the most of your time.

Amazing speakers

Why not bring in some external ideas and expertise to fire up your creativity – from the learnings of a strategist on relevant cultural trends, to the inspiring personal musings of a founder.

Engaging moderators

Bringing someone in from outside your team to run, shape and steer sessions can lead to brilliant outcomes where everyone's voice is heard and actions are properly captured.

and more....

Through our friends at YCN, we can connect you with experts in various fields. If you're interested, we can hook you up with these guys to help solve challenges and create opportunities in Sessions and when you leave.

In Session with Artiq

Our spaces will continually evolve to tell new stories. We've partnered with art consultancy Artiq to curate exhibitions spotlighting local heavyweights and young and emerging artists. Our artists in residency will see The Lobby and Gallery as a home for artwork, rotating every six months.

We kickstart this partnership with London-based painter Olha Pryymak, inspired by trips to rural Latvia, herbalism and art's ability to inspire healing and change.
